So Late in the Day by Claire Keegan £10

All evening, with only the television and a bottle of champagne for company, thoughts of this woman and others intrude - and the true significance of this particular date is revealed.

- Claire Keegan is the author Small Things Like These

Hercule Poirot's Silent Night by Sophie Hannah Created by Agatha Christie £22

It's 19 December 1931. Hercule Poirot and Inspector Edward Catchpool are called to investigate the murder of a man in the apparent safe haven of a Norfolk hospital ward. Catchpool's mother, the irrepressible Cynthia, insists that Poirot stays in a crumbling mansion by the coast, so that they can all be together for the festive period while Poirot solves the case. Cynthia's friend Arnold is soon to be admitted to that same hospital and his wife is convinced he will be the killer's next victim, though she will not say why.

Poirot has less than a week to solve the crime and prevent more murders, if he is to escape from this nightmare scenario and get home in time for Christmas. Meanwhile, someone else - someone utterly ruthless - also has ideas about what ought to happen to Hercule Poirot . .

Talk books, drink coffee and eat cake

from "The Long War"

" Less passionate the long war throws
It's burning thorn about all men,
Caught in one grief, we share one wound,
And cry one dialect of pain.

Laurie Lee's Collected Poems £20

" I
I

am a lifted kettle, me
rise and I shine
One cup of tea
And the world is mine "

Lemn Sissay's
let the light pour in £12.99

A Short Poem for Creationist's

"The only thing which has not evolved - and I don't mean to be facetious -

is the argument That you set forth,

On the Origin of Species "
